INTRODUCTION

As part of the competition, candidates are invited to act as art advisors and to submit a proposal for a collection of 15 works by artists of different generations and geographical origins.

In recent years, contemporary art in the western world has opened its doors to different latitudes and times: from China to Africa, from Latin America to India. The art system has consequently become a complex fabric in which present day images intertwine with art from the past and with that of popular traditions.

The German art critic Hans Belting describes these new cultural worlds with the expression: "The Global Contemporary": from museums to the market, different iconographic traditions coexist with the international language of art and give shape to a new imagery and new forms of collecting. Large scale exhibitions, such as Venice Biennale or Documenta, international art fairs, such as Frieze, Art Basel and Miart, as well as auction houses with special sales, create a dialogue between modern masters and young contemporary talents, antique trade mingles with today's artistic production and what was once called tribal art interacts on a par with western tradition. Mega galleries have offices in several continents and the languages and generations of their artists entwine.

PROJECT BRIEF

Students are invited to submit a dossier containing 15 works, comparing contemporary art with works from different cultures and times. Consulting exhibition catalogues, auction houses and gallery websites, candidates are required to select a collection of works, which are to be described individually in a data sheet (author, technique, date, size, origin and price, where available) and write an introductory text presenting the collection and the reasons behind their choices.

JURY

The projects submitted by candidates will be assessed and selected by:

- MARCO SCOTINI - Director of NABA's Visual Arts Department, Artistic Director at FM Contemporary Art Centre, Milan
- ANTONELLA CRIPPA - Collection Chief Curator at UBI Banca
- WALTER GUADAGNINI - Unicredit Artistic Board
- ADRIANA POLVERONI - Art Verona Director
- NABA Admissions Jury

AUDIENCE

The competition is open to candidates with a three-year bachelor's degree or a level I academic diploma (or who are waiting to attain this qualification within the last session of a.y. 2017/18), in arts, humanities, economics or legal disciplines, interested in learning more about the art market and the valorisation of collections. The competition is also open to candidates with proven professional experience in the art world.

DELIVERABLES

Competition participants are requested to submit:

- A PROJECT PROPOSAL to be submitted in the form of a text explaining the concept (maximum 2 A4 pages), in addition to a dossier containing the 15 selected works and relevant data sheets, graphical designs, photo editing or any other technique (maximum 18 A4 sheets), and any other additional materials on digital media (CD, DVD, USB flash drive with visualisation of the project, photos, 3D, designs, drawings etc. in a pdf format).

Candidates are also required to submit:

- Detailed curriculum vitae;
- Motivation statement;
- Copy of Bachelor Degree/Academic diploma translated into English/Italian;
